Living in Freedom Part II

As the Central Sun for your galaxy keeps filtering more and more of its pure Crystalline/Diamond Light into your world, we are here to assist you in keeping your eyes focused on the heavens, your hearts opened wide to each other and your feet thoroughly connected to the precious Earth beneath you so she may continue supporting your physical well being. Your freedom will come from living as an awakened, conscious being within both the physical and the spiritual dimensions of your soul, for how could it be otherwise?

Masters Serapis Bey, Lady Celeste, El Morya and Lady Miriam:

What did Jeshua really mean when he said, “Come to me as little children”? Your thinking, speaking and actions will arise so spontaneously from the purity of an open heart in your new Golden Age that it will eliminate the mind's learned tendency to judge. Judging comes from believing that what you share needs to be intelligent, interesting, acceptable or in some way entertaining, yet watch little children to see how different it is for them, especially up to the age of four when much of their innocence is still intact. For the most part, children are gloriously natural and completely spontaneous in their actions as well as when they share their thoughts and feelings. As their minds start maturing, they often start developing ideas about themselves and those around them. These ideas soon become the limited opinions they hold about themselves and others. Imagine how different life would be without the ego's need to create competition, comparisons, separation and judgment?

If you build thoughts about others, you are actually attempting, consciously or unconsciously to limit their freedom with your own ideas and ideals which are often based on false perceptions. Strong opinions, and the projections that often abide with them, are so common in your world that they usually go unrecognized as one of the main ways humanity has created its present state of separation and conflict.

One of the keys to living in your mastery—and thereby living in freedom—is to call for the assistance of an internal observer. This observer could be seen as a personal angel who has agreed to compassionately oversee your everyday thoughts, actions and behavior to see how well you are supporting your true potential. Most people expect others to live up to their expectations. When children are taught to create their own standards of excellence, then they learn how to make choices that are in line with their True Self and they will see life as an ongoing series of opportunities to express their genius. Your inner child, which is closely aligned with your feeling nature, is often encoded with a false set of standards that are limiting your true potential.

There is always much to learn from neutrally observing your behavior and the behavior of others. Staying fluid and out of judgment is a major key; yet standing in your truth also remains a vital key for building the foundations of your mastery. How can you stand in your truth and in your freedom while remaining neutral? We suggest that you not impose your truth on others, simply share your observations and let them respond and collaborate as they choose. For they must be given the equal freedom to stand in their truth.

Your heart is your neutral observer and in its connection with your Presence and your original encoding from Source, it is always there to assist you in transmuting and transforming any thoughts or words that might create limitation or separation. Your Presence or True Self could be seen as your witnessing angel, yet do not expect it to engage in your limitations or to support your individual or collective illusions. You can remain in ongoing harmony with the unlimited capacity of your Presence by listening and following its guidance through your heart.

Initiate your thoughts and actions from the wisdom and honesty of your Presence, which will allow you to be totally honest with yourself and responsibly honest in your communications with others, speaking only with the love deep in your heart. This is what will allow you to live in freedom. Every Master always asks to be shown the highest truth; then they stand in that truth while remaining open and willing to release their position if a higher truth presents itself. The truth really can set you free, as true honesty shines the light of truth into the hiding places of the limited mind. The ego has been supporting the separation myth for a very long time, yet it is now time for the truth to set the hearts of humankind free.

To assist you in connecting to the highest truth of your Presence, the Masters from the ascended realms have created courses to Walk the Earth as a Living Master and to create a new Golden Age.
