The Joy of Remembering Part II

Most human beings have only experienced what it really feels like to live in authentic love and joy for brief periods of time. These two qualities have been the most elusive and the least understood by humankind, yet they are a natural part of the eternal Presence of your God Self. Your Presence holds the keys to your enlightenment, and as your Eternal Beloved, your Presence is now inviting you to move into Unity Consciousness in the 5th dimension. This shift is being referred to as the ascension and it is taking place on every level of life. We are here to support you in remembering that you are here to live as your already-ascended God Presence on Earth.

~ Master Serapis Bey and the Councils of Light

Your memories and the many experiences you have had in countless lifetimes have shaped your ego and your personality, yet they are truly only stories that have simply been carried forward throughout the centuries. They may have been real once, but now they are only supporting an imaginary world that is filled with fleeting thoughts, beliefs, images and ideas that often conjure up emotions. Your overlighting Presence is coming forward during these times to assist you in learning how to simply observe the coming and the going of the kaleidoscope of these images, thoughts and feelings with no need to give any one of them undue importance. The exception would be if you feel in the depths of your heart that what you are observing or feeling is pointing to an important realization or an action that needs to take place in the present.

Feelings make people feel more vital and alive, yet there are exquisite, ecstatic feelings that are natural to the Presence that most human beings have only experienced for fleeting moments. You have the love, the wisdom, and the true power and authority of your Presence to shift your mind out of any old stories or memories that are no longer serving you. Every time you remember this, your head clears, your body relaxes, your heart opens, and you experience a release from inner conflict, stress, and suffering because you return to simply being your Presence in the moment, and that, beloveds, is the foundational premise for living in joy and the kind of ecstasy that is not based on outer circumstances.

Your God Presence is only accessible in each unfolding moment, meaning it does not live in the future or the past and it lives outside of all of your stories, thoughts and feelings; yet it is forever assisting you in remaining aware of yourself as the consciousness through which everything is constantly arising. You are not really a human being in space and time who has only intermittent glimpses of consciousness. You are not a wave that only occasionally remembers its Self as the ocean. Rather you are consciousness itself, viewing all of creation through the eyes of your Source-encoded heart, temporarily experiencing your Self within a form body.

You are connected into an inexhaustible source of wisdom, love, and inner joy. Surely this is more exciting than living out of some self-created myth about who you believed you were in your past or who you believe you might become in your future. You can only be truly alive in the present and though this is a pivotal key to walking on the Earth as a living master, the consciousness that is doing the walking must be one with the original encoding of Love and Light that is seeded in your heart.

Your identity does not depend on your beliefs about who you think you are or could be, your stories, your wealth or your life's circumstances. It flows directly out of the Love and Light of Source that is within and around everything that is constantly coming into your awareness according to where you place your attention. Your attention creates your reality in every moment and that moment folds into the next and the next and the next. In essence, you are the life force behind all appearances and the deep realization of this creates the freedom and the joy that naturally comes with remembering that you are, indeed, one with Source consciousness.

Oneness arises out of the deep intimacy you naturally have with all of life. It is sustained by your willingness to simply be present with all that is unfolding. Remain open and welcome everything and everyone who comes into your life and take time to experience the vast silence that is filled with the true joy of simply being alive and one with all of creation. You can then communicate without any sense of personal ownership, pride, or emotional attachment and simply dissolve into the joy of being on Earth as your True Self during these glorious times.
